PURPOSE AND OUTCOME*Course Overview

The overall goals of this course are: 1) To provide a basic understanding of the biological process by which HIV causes infection and AIDS, including the physiologic processes and cellular process involved in HIV infection and treatment; 2) To promote the development of skills in finding and interpreting current epidemiologic data on HIV/AIDS, including risk factors, comorbid health issues, special populations, and health outcomes; 3) To present an overview of HIV prevention strategies and their effectiveness; 4) To discuss issues specific to the epidemiology of HIV/AIDS in the rural south

Course Objectives and/or Goals

Upon successful completion of the course, students should be able to:

- Describe the emergence of HIV as a new pathogen, particularly within the US
- Discuss the pathogenesis of HIV and its effect on the immune system
- Identify current treatment strategies for HIV infection and barriers to treatment success
- Identify current behavioral and biomedical strategies to prevent HIV transmission
- Analyze and interpret epidemiologic data related to HIV/AIDS to measure the burden of disease in their respective geographic areas and among populations of interest
- Design epidemiologic studies related to the prevention and treatment of HIV/AIDS overall and within specific groups of persons.
- Explain the role of public health in the prevention and management of HIV in Florida
- Apply knowledge of legal and ethical issues related to HIV-infected individuals and prevention of infection

How to Succeed in This Course

The summer session is shorter than other semesters but the course content is not shorter so the pace of this course will be fast. It's critical that you keep up with the schedule. This course is not self-paced so be sure to mark the assignment due dates, quiz dates, and book discussion date in your calendar and participate in them as scheduled. You are expected to have reliable internet access for this course. If you plan to go out of town then you'll need to plan ahead to ensure that your assignments are submitted on-time. The final paper in this course is a critical element, so start early, review your epidemiology study designs, and follow the paper guidelines.

Course Materials and Technology

Required course readings will be drawn from multiple open-access sources and posted on the course website. To participate in the online book discussion, you should have headphones with a microphone and a high-speed internet connection.

The required book for the book discussion is My Own Country, by Abraham Verghese,

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

Quizzes

There will be three online quizzes during the semester to assess overall understanding of the material presented during lectures. The quizzes will be open book/open note, with a mixed format of short answer, long answer, and multiple choice. Each quiz is worth 10% of the course grade. You are supposed to do the quiz independently, and without help or input from others. Quiz questions will, for the most part, be based on the individual learning objectives for each class.

Course Discussions

There will be several homework assignments during the semester, most of which are worth 15 points (2.5% of the course grade). Instructions for completing homework assignments can be found on the Canvas site.

Book Discussion

All students will read My Own Country, by Abraham Verghese, (ISBN 0-679-75292-7) for the book discussion during week 10 of the course. Write and answer three book discussion questions that we will use during our group discussion. You will participate in a live book discussion during the week of July 11 to July 17. The book discussion questions are worth 25 points of your grade and your participation in and contribution toward the book discussion is worth 25 points (total book discussion is 8.33% of grade).

Final Project

Students will design an original epidemiologic study related to HIV/AIDS prevention, transmission, treatment, potential associations in high-risk groups, or other topics as approved by the instructor. This project is supposed to be somewhat like a grant application in which you identify a problem (or gap in our knowledge) and propose a research study to address the problem or gap. As part of this requirement, students will submit a Research Paper Question (draft 10 points and final 15 points), an Outline of Research Paper (25 points), a rough draft (25 points) and a Peer evaluation of each other's rough drafts (25 points). The final project (100 points) will be the write-up of the study proposal, including one to two study aims, a brief literature review relevant to the proposed study, and a description of the proposed study. The write-up should be 8 to 10 pages, double-spaced, and is due on August 5. More details will be provided in the Canvas course site and in brief video clips provided by the instructor. As you can see this project paper is worth 200 points (33% of the grade!). Our course TA (Mr. Okafor) will be checking in with each of you to discuss your ideas after you submit your paper outline, and you are encouraged to speak with either Dr. Cook or Mr. Okafor early in the process of thinking about this paper.

Grading: Each assignment contributes somewhat to the overall course grade. The final paper is a large chunk of the grade so it is important to not fall behind on that assignment. If you miss an assignment due date, you will be assigned a zero. Please discuss with the instructor ASAP about possible make-up options, which can be considered in some circumstances but not always. Although an assignment worth 2.5% of your grade does not seem like much, if you miss more than 3-4 of these it will be nearly impossible to obtain an A.
